

Tugleigh the Technician

Cartoons by Art Adams, DRTE Drafting Section

F.T Davies recalls:

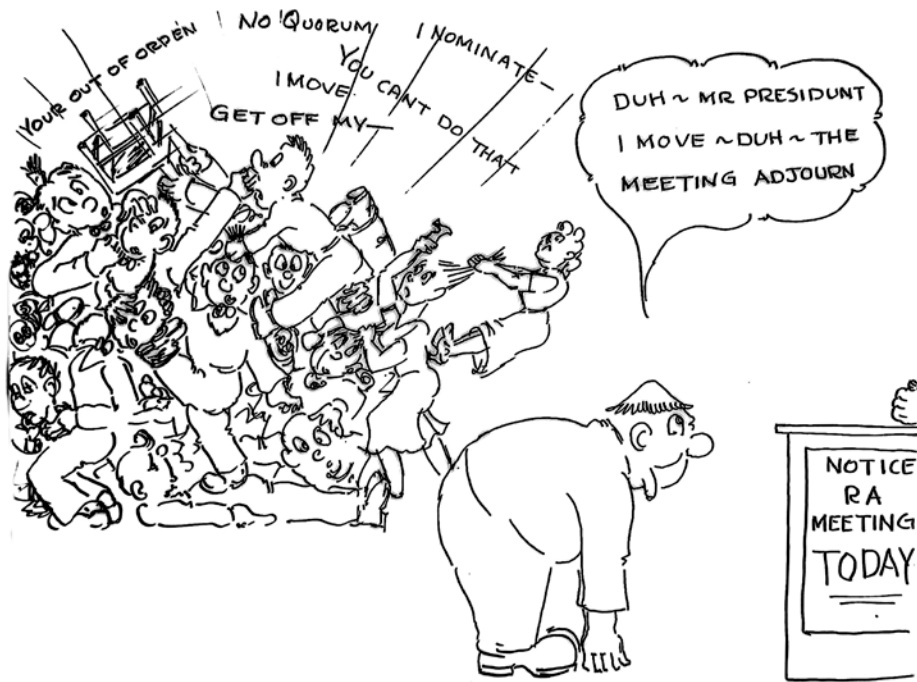

"One of our recruits to EL from the Army was Art Adams who was not only a skilled draftsman but a very shrewd cartoonist. In EL, as in other Engineering Laboratories, there was a continuing and generally friendly rivalry between the technicians, the machinists and the draftsmen. This is reminiscent of the "deck versus black gang" at sea. Adams invented a remarkable character named Tugleigh the Technician who was pin-headed and stooped over with long arms, fingers touching his toes. This was supposed to be a technician and was always portrayed as a very loyal and conscientious character with very little sense."

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF TUGLEIGH the TECHNICIAN
by EE

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF TUGLEIGH the TECHNICIAN
by SD

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF TUGLEIGH the TECHNICIAN by SD

TUGLEIGH'S TRIUMPH

by ~~SS~~ ~~SS~~

The Tribulations of TUGLEIGH the TECHNICIAN
by ~~SS~~ ~~SS~~

There are probably other cartoons in this series that were not photographed in the 1950's. If any of our Friends have copies of those cartoons, we'd be interested in making digital copies for inclusion on these pages.

John Brebner
Archivist, Friends of CRC

Return to Home Page...

